Clelands builds a partnership for Taranaki healthcare

Clelands Construction and Timber have joined with Taranaki Health Foundation as a Major Partner.

Clelands Director, Alistair Dore said the commitment was about supporting Taranaki and its people. "After speaking with the Taranaki Health Foundation Trustees including Bruce Moller and hearing about the opportunity for Partnership, we felt that the campaign was a very worthwhile project. Both Clelands Construction and Clelands Timber are committed to being involved," said Alistair. "Our Partnership with the Health Foundation is in support of both our staff and the region."

Since 1916, Clelands has been building relationships in Taranaki with its customers and providing the highest level of service in the building and construction markets. This includes working on many iconic and award winning projects in the region including Puke Ariki, Port Taranaki and Sport Taranaki.

"It gives us great pleasure to be involved in projects like this that put something directly back into the Taranaki community," says Alistair. "We have a very loyal workforce who are our most valuable asset. The support of leading-edge healthcare in Taranaki is one of our ways of giving back to our staff in the region."

Combined, Clelands Timber and Construction employ 150 people creating innovative building solutions for their clients and fostering a culture of quality, safety and integrity.

The Partnership with Clelands Timber and Construction is just one example of the Taranaki region coming together to support vital enhancements and improvements for our community. This support will help the Foundation in its goal of providing leading-edge healthcare, Taranaki-wide.

Major Partner in Taranaki and now the Foundation

Originally established in 1972 as Inglewood Engineering and re-branded in 2005, Energyworks Limited has grown within the Energy sector in Taranaki to become one of New Zealand's leading specialised multi-disciplined engineering companies.

Energyworks new, purpose built facilities are located on Connett Road, Bell Block.

Managing Director, Dallas Chadwick made the decision to become a Major Partner of the Taranaki Health Foundation after meeting with Foundation Trustees, Murali Bhaskar and Bruce Moller and hearing of the "Improve Your Stay" and "Connected Health" campaigns.

"I've had over 30 years in the industry and our success has been based on the success of the region, recognising and investing in the right opportunities and good people. By becoming a Major Partner of the Foundation, we're just trying to help make Taranaki a better place by investing in the region that supports us, our employees and our clients."

As a company, Energyworks likes to contribute to projects that help make the community what it is such as the South Taranaki Coast Guard, Pukekura Park Children's Playground and The Taranaki Arts Festival. "Taranaki has a nice vibe and it's great to be part of it," describes Dallas.

Dallas was raised in Taranaki, and with his wife Erin they are bringing their boy's up here as well. As a family they themselves use the local healthcare services and they believe that "it's a comfort to the community to know they are well serviced with health care. Access to leading-edge healthcare is a service that everyone needs. The whole community benefits from the work of the Foundation."

"It's nice to be able to give a little bit back," says Dallas.

Billings' proud to support the local community

For over 100 years, the Billings law firm has been an active part of Taranaki and now they are extending their connection with the community by supporting the Taranaki Health Foundation as a Gold Business Supporter.

Tim Coleman, a Billings Partner, explained why they became a Business Supporter, "Healthcare is one of the greatest services within a community. It's one of the times when people are most in need - and it is essential that they are able to get the best care and services available".

Billings has strong Taranaki roots and is committed to the region and its people. "We recognize the support we've received from the local community over many years. When we made the announcement to our staff, they were thrilled that we were supporting the Foundation and the redevelopment of the Base Hospital. As a local business, we believe we have a real social responsibility to contribute to our community. Our clients, our staff, our friends and family, we are all just as likely to use the health services in Taranaki, and if we can do our bit to help improve those services, then we should."

Tim notes "It's fantastic that we now have a state-of-the-art facility at Taranaki Base Hospital. The Foundation provides real and tangible benefits to the region. Our healthcare services can now be included along with all the other fabulous amenities our region has to offer - and we should all be proud of that!"
